

Some useful tips for your stay in China

- Be cautious when strangers invite you to tea ceremonies in their home after e.g. asking you to take a picture of them – If they master foreign languages very well and ask you immediately to come with them chances are high it is a fraud
- Only take legal taxis - in Shanghai you can recognize them easily because of their uniform design and the plate on top of the car
- Only book trips via your hotel
- Be careful when crossing the streets, some drivers do not mind the pedestrian lights
- Not many people speak English, please keep that in mind
- On the pages following this page you will find some useful phrases to guide you around China; the pronunciation guide below is made for English speakers, so please refer to the English pronunciation when using the guide
- In short: Mind everything you would mind in any other foreign country where you don't know your way around
